

Abstract

A powder dispenser includes a reservoir and a removable end cap that seals an end of the reservoir. A powder measure is rotatably affixed at an opposite end of the reservoir for receiving a specific amount of powder from the reservoir. The powder measure rotates into a first position to allow the user to dip an injured dog toenail into the measure to stop blood flowing from the toenail. The powder measure rotates into a second position to for refilling the powder measure.